Note: The 1990 Amendments to the Clean Air Act required that the IDEM Office of Air Quality (OAQ) act by December 31, 2000, on all applications for Title V Air Operating Permits received before June 30, 1999. The OAQ has issued the majority of permit decisions required by the deadline, and decisions on the remaining applications are scheduled to be issued in 2001. The chart also includes applications received after June 30, 1999. Applications received after that date must be processed within 18 months. To date, twenty-five (25) such reviews have been completed and permits issued, with no late permits.

While the majority of Title V permit decisions were issued by the December 31, 2000 deadline, a number of the more complex application reviews are still pending. According to EPA, as of November 2001, Indiana (nationally, a leader among industrial states in its processing of TV applications) has issued permits for 74 percent of the applications it received, while Michigan, the next most productive state in EPA Region V, has issued permits for 68 percent of its Title V applications.

* There is no statutory deadline for the approval of Title V significant permit modifications; instead 326 IAC 2-7-12(d)(2) states that IDEM shall complete review of the majority of significant permit modifications within nine (9) months after receipt of a complete application. Approvals for modifications to existing sources with Title V permits is a two step process: source modification approval and permit modification approval. Pre-construction approvals for modifications to "sources" are tracked on page 9 (or page 10 if a federal level review is required).

Note: This chart tracks approvals for modifications to the actual Title V permits of those sources which did not opt to have any required permit modifications reviewed simultaneously with pre-construction source modification approvals which would have instead allowed their permit to be subsequently modified by way of an administrative permit amendment. The top three (3) rows of the table report the actual number of modifications issued monthly, and the median number of days to issue, while the bottom three (3) rows report the total number of modification applications received, decisions issued (including applications withdrawn, canceled, combined, or denied) and applications pending.

NPDES Permits, which are issued to all municipal and industrial facilities discharging wastewater into the "waters of the state", expire after five years. Waters of the state means such accumulations of water, surface and underground, natural and artificial (manmade reservoirs or channels), public and private, or parts thereof, which are wholly or partially within, which flow through, or which border upon the state of Indiana. This chart tracks three types of general and individual NPDES permit applications: 1) permits which are still effective and for which a renewal application already has been received; 2) permits for which the renewal application was received after the permit expired; and 3) permits which have been administratively extended because the renewal application was received prior to the permit becoming expired.

Monthly Total # of Draft Permits Which Have Been Public Noticed One or More Times	45	47	62	47	53	48	51	44	42	40	40	44

Note: The term "backlog" of NPDES permit applications includes only those permits which have been administratively extended after a renewal application was submitted in a timely manner (prior to the expiration of the permit), but for which a draft permit has not yet been placed on public notice. The NPDES backlog (shown on the chart and on line 2 [the second line] of the table) has been reduced from approximately 673 in January 1998, to the number currently displayed on the chart. Renewal applications are due 180 days prior to the expiration of the permit. Thus, a number of applications already are on file with the Office of Water Quality for permits which are still "active" and therefore not yet considered part of the backlog (see line 3). Once a draft permit has been placed on public notice, it no longer is considered as "backlogged" because final issuance can be delayed by the applicant or other interested parties. Line 4 shows the number of permits on public notice each month. Line 5 (at the bottom of the table) shows the total number of administratively extended draft permits which have been public noticed, but have not yet been issued. This chart is a subset of the "Permit Renewals Pending" chart on the previous page.

Under 327 IAC 3-2.1-3, sanitary sewer extensions do not require a permit from IDEM if the plans are prepared by a professional engineer, submitted to and reviewed by a local publicly-owned sewer authority, and meet all state water pollution control rules and if the local authority then notifies IDEM. Similarly, under 327 IAC 3-2-4 (11-13), repairs, replacements, modifications, or additions of equipment for an existing municipal or industrial water pollution treatment/control facility do not require a permit if they are not made to treat a new influents, or if there is no increase in the capacity of the facility. These rules became effective June 17, 1999, and their subsequent impact is reflected in the decreasing numbers of applications pending.

* HEA 1919, effective July 1, 1999, reduced the allowable time frame for IDEM review of wastewater construction permit applications from 120 days to 90 days.

* IC 13-15-4-1 (as amended by HEA 1919, effective July 1, 1999) required the time frame for permitting decisions on applications for Drinking Water Facility Construction Permits to be reduced from 120 days to 90 days. In addition, state rule 327 IAC 8-3-5.5 limits permit review of all Drinking Construction Permit applications -- except those for water treatment plants -- to 60 days, the decisions deadline depicted on this chart.

 This number has been amended to account for data logged in late as a result of a computer failure.

The data provided for applications pending represents a "snapshot" of the number of permit applications pending at the end of the given month.

*This value has been amended from 29 to 30 permits issued because an issued permit was recorded into the database late.

Note: A Minor Permit Modification of a solid waste land disposal facility is a change that does not increase the facility's capacity by the lesser of 10% or 500,000 cubic yards, or change the boundary by more than one acre.

* As provided in IC 13-15-4-2, thirty (30) additional days are allowed for solid waste minor permit modifications and certain other IDEM-issued permits issuances, whenever a public hearing is conducted. In accordance with this statute, 30 days are automatically subtracted from the total number of days for permit issuance for permits subjected to a public hearing in cases where the permit is consequently issued in excess of the 90-day deadline applicable to permits not subject to a public hearing.
